Top TV Channels by Views

Performance Analysis

Sports Dominance

SuperSport Live Events leads with 1.638 views (12% ahead of competitors), demonstrating strong market demand for live sports content.

Concentrated Preferences

The top 3 channels (SuperSport, ICC Cricket World Cup, and Channel O) collectively capture 41.5% of total viewership, highlighting audience preference for sports and music content.

Entertainment Deficit

E! Entertainment's weaker performance (367 views) compared to sports/news channels suggests either:
Quality gaps in entertainment programming, or
Ineffective promotion of existing entertainment content

The Age & Gender Divide in Viewership

AGE_GROUP	MALE_USERS	FEMALE_USERS	TOTAL_USERS
0-17	89	34	123
18-25	741	89	830
26-35	1,62	247	1,867
36-45	1,03	109	1,139
46+	436	58	494

- 1. Low female engagement: All female age groups show minimal activity (e.g., 247 users in 26–35).
- 2. Key opportunities: Target males 26–35 with high-engagement content and females 18–45 with rom-coms/dramas.
- 3. Untapped potential: Family-friendly or dad-focused content could appeal to 36–45 males (1,030 users).

Viewership Across All Racial Groups

- Male viewers dominate – All groups are 84%+ male, with Indian Asian audiences having the biggest gap (94% men).
- Black viewers engage most women – At 15.5% female, they outperform other groups.
- Content may need adjustment – Such low female viewership suggests programming isn't reaching women equally.

Top Days for Viewer Engagement

- Saturday leads in viewership — peak audience engagement happens on weekends.
- Top 3 days (Sat, Fri, Wed) drive over half of weekly views — focus content mid-to-late week.

Gender Distribution by Percentage

- Insight: There's a significant gender gap — male users dominate the platform.
- Female viewership is vastly underrepresented.
- Opportunity: Create targeted campaigns to attract female users

Top Users and Engagement Trends

- High (20+ views): 3% of users (e.g., USERID 809704, 809056)
- Medium (6–19 views): 37% of users
- Low (2–5 views): 60% of users

Channel-wise Viewership Breakdown by Gender

Male viewers dominate overall viewership with over 91% of total views. SuperSport Live Events and ICC Cricket World Cup 2011 are the top channels, driven largely by male audiences. Africa Magic, Trace TV, and Cartoon Network are most popular among females. Several channels show a strong gender imbalance, especially in sports content

Factors Influencing Consumption

Gender Disparity	Males dominate viewership (>90%), indicating potential content or access bias.
Age Group Preferences	Certain age brackets (e.g., 18–35) drive most engagement, pointing to generational content alignment.
Time of Day Usage	Prime time (5PM–9PM) sees the highest engagement, signaling consumption habits tied to daily routines.
Channel-Type Bias	Sports and music channels lead in views, suggesting underperformance of educational or lifestyle content.
Race-Based Engagement	Viewership trends differ across racial groups, which may reflect cultural or language-based content appeal.
Provincial Disparities	Certain provinces show disproportionately high or low consumption, indicating regional access or interest gaps.
Low Female Engagement	Female users are underrepresented in high viewership, hinting at possible content irrelevance or digital access gaps.
User Loyalty/Heavy Users	A small segment of users contribute a high number of views (top 10 users), suggesting dependency on power viewers.
Channel Overlap	Multiple users view the same top channels, which may lead to content fatigue or lack of diversity.

The BrightLight Audience Expansion Blueprint

- ❑ More Sports Content – Add exclusive cricket matches and sports documentaries to keep fans engaged.
